Dear Mac:

The attached is self-explanatory. I don't know whether the President is going to Southern California and, if he does, his intentions with respect to speeches or public appearances. However, if he wishes a strictly non-political forum made up of the most prominent civic and business leaders and educators in Southern California, the Los Angeles World Affairs Council would be his best choice.

Please let me know as I will be in Los Angeles on Monday and would be happy to inform the Council of the decision.

Sincerely,

John A. McCone
Director

(No copy of the attachment available. It was a suggestion from the LA World Council that perhaps the President would speak to that group when he was in Southern California.)
